About this page This is the main entry point for the Simplode suite (alongside the Simplode GUI and the Simplode Programmers API). Formats Features Simplode Suite The Simplode Suite is a collection of display utilities for performing basic image display analysis and graphical analysis. Description Simplode is a set of libraries and tools for viewing and analyzing images. You can find more information about Simplode's features here. Supported file formats The image formats most commonly supported by Simplode are as follows: Binary format - UQM (with optional 32-bit floating point information). This format is the most useful for viewing images, but does not support writing information to the file, so cannot be used for simultaneous selection and analysis. Compressed format - PNG format (with optional 32-bit floating point information). This format supports writing selected areas, but does not support viewing selected areas. Pixel format - BMP, GIF or JPEG format. This format supports viewing selected areas, but also supports writing selected areas. Support of more file formats is being implemented and is listed in the menu. Compression format types Additionally, any files compressed with one of the following formats are interpreted as images. ZLib is a general purpose, lossless data compression library. The zlib library is used to compress the PNG data during writing. The PNG format also allows reading of zipped versions of files. If compressed PNG data is to be decoded, then the zlib library must be installed on the system that is to perform the decoding. This is normally fine, as the zlib library is required by many common image formats, including but not limited to TIFF, JPEG, BMP, GIF and many others. PNG writers should support PNG IPTC information for a more complete file description. File Operation By default, the old style C was selected. You can change this to assembler when typing code directly, or select the macro or template via a global menu. If you wish to use the C++ interface, you must build Simplode with the option --enable-versioned-calls when running the configure script. See the

The game is presented in an old world environment (made with the WYSIWYG editor, so that the user can feel that he/she is opening a CD-ROM. On the other hand, the game concept is as modern as they can get, its atmosphere and visual design are reminiscent of the classics but adds its own touch to it.) and includes a full mission editor. Storyline: The protagonist of the game is set in 1944 in Poland, during the time when Germany occupied Poland. After the defeat of Germany in the war, the country is divided between the communist and the fascist nations. The nazi's take over the media and they use the war to set themselves in place and spread their propaganda. Then one day the aliens arrive. A small group of German scientists from the Oppenheimer Institute travel in the pod to a secret place in the desert. There they found the answer to the puzzle of where the aliens came from, that they were the aliens from space. The nazis were willing to open the gate to the other planets to get rid of the problem. But the scientist were against it and didn't allow it. The scientists managed to shut the gate to the next world and were betrayed to the nazis by their colleague. They were then taken to the kremlin where the "great leader" ("Filth Is Lead" parody) had them tortured and offered them to the secret service. They were let go on a condition that they try to shut the gate again. But there was no more media with that technology, so there was no one to release them. During the journey to the gate they found out that the Nazis were ready to cut off the thumb of one of the protagonists. But the scientists were unable to prevent it, so now they are waiting for their fate. Gameplay: It's a spaceship sim with heavy military game elements. The player is one of three main characters. At the beginning, the game is offered for 4 choices: (1) Pilot, (2) Engineer and (3) Weapons operator. The game progresses with the character gaining experience to become more powerful. There are two kinds of damage, normal damage and special damage. Each time the player is hit with a special damage, he/she loses one life. If one of the characters is killed, the game is over. The game presents a mixture of action, shooting, base building and resource management. There are 3 different energy types: (1) Solar energy, (2)
