The first game I played after returning from Tokyo Game Show, right after the launch of the new Switch version of the game. **Please note that this review contains spoilers** Before reading my thoughts, please read the review by FeelsLocal/yukihide: If you have seen the first game, you'll understand what I'm talking about in this review. **Story** When I first saw the opening CG, I had to keep myself from weeping tears of joy: this story is so beautiful, and so sad, too. The story follows a young woman named Fiodor, who journeys through the Lands Between to look for her lost love, Nicée. At first, Fiodor's appearance is that of an ordinary lady, but when we begin to understand the circumstances of Fiodor's life, a dark story about love begins to emerge. I am still in mourning, and am always in a state of shock. Sometimes the introduction to a sudden change in a story that is so beautiful feels so sudden and disturbing. But I want to continue to follow Fiodor's story, I want to continue to find out about the dark parts. I really wanted to find out more about the characters. Is the relationship between she and Nicée happy, or is it different? I want to know about her backstory. But when I first started playing the game, I was naturally confused, and for some time I couldn't find out anything about her. This was extremely frustrating. This game contains many small clues that lead to the truth about Fiodor, but we can never be certain if they were dropped intentionally or accidentally. In the same way, I couldn't understand the relationship between the two goddesses. According to the game, they appeared in a time when the Lands Between were being created and they thought of humans as "mean, greedy earthlings who would cause trouble in this world". This is why they destroyed them. But on the other hand, as they were being destroyed, the goddesses were sad, and the reason behind this was unknown. I was sad when I realized this. But I also felt that my own life was also reflected in this situation, and I don't know if it was ok or not. bff6bb2d33
