Image copyright AP Image caption Russia has said it is not able to stop people leaving the country The Russian authorities have announced an amnesty for more than 50,000 foreign nationals who have illegally left the country. They must surrender at the border and appear before courts, the Federal Migration Service says. The move has been prompted by a new law that is due to come into force in August allowing the authorities to confiscate foreign passports. Russia was reported to be the world's fourth-largest emigration country last year. But it remains in danger of overtaking China for the title as it prepares to pass a law on the confiscation of property abroad. It is facing widespread criticism both in Europe and the US after several internet and social media firms that accept Russian dollars or rubles choose to block access to the sites. Russian Ambassador to the US Anatoly Antonov on Monday welcomed the new law as a step in the right direction. But human rights groups have warned it amounts to forced emigration and the FMS has also acknowledged that not all emigrants are illegal. Under the amnesty, foreigners will be given time to leave Russia legally and face no charges if they report to police. The FMS says that 50,000 foreign nationals have already agreed to do this. "The amnesty will be available until 11 August, the day new laws come into force allowing the confiscation of the documents of foreign nationals without any reasons," the FMS said in a statement. "The amnesty will not apply to persons who plan to leave Russia with the aim of illegally migrating to other countries." Tatyana Kuznetsova, the deputy head of the FMS, told Russian news agency Interfax that the amnesty would take effect "as of today". The legislation, which was approved unanimously by the State Duma, will fine people who have emigrated twice. There is no word yet on whether the amnesty will apply to Russians who have left the country illegally.Q: Inherited classes using singleton I have been reading about OOP and singleton classes. I have a general question about inheritance and singletons. Lets say I have two classes A and B class A { } class B : A { } Now we assume the perfect singleton pattern is somehow created, like so: class Singleton { private static $

What's New In Photoshop CS3?

You are here Getting to Know Our International Student Meet Alexandra Alexandra is a lovely UK student who came with her daughter to start her program at Johnson University. She loves watching sports and loves cooking the traditional Mediterranean food from her home country. She is a very warm and sociable person who loves people and spends almost all her free time with her family. Alexandra and her daughter stayed at our campus last summer. She says that she really enjoyed herself and that the campus was beautiful. "I think the campus is really beautiful. I like the town and I can't wait to spend more time here next summer." Alexandra has a busy life as a student and mother, so she doesn't have much time to spend with friends. Sometimes, she wishes she had time for herself, but she still manages to enjoy the beauty of her town and her home. "I try to go for a run every morning because I like the fresh air and good atmosphere around town. I like swimming in my free time, and I don't have time for that now." Alexandra comes from a family that is very friendly and sociable. Her friends live around the UK, so they visit her whenever they have a chance. "I think that traveling with my daughter was good for me. I was with my family and had to stay really close together. But it was really nice to take my daughter to our homeland." Alexandra is very excited to meet the Johnson University family and to spend some time with them. She also hopes to meet more of them, as she finds them very friendly and like talking with them. "I am really looking forward to spending time with the students. I am also happy because I like the hostel so I think that I will feel more comfortable here." She loves how friendly Johnson University is. Her hostel roommate called her by name when she got there, and she was so nice to her. She liked the lovely atmosphere of the campus and the beautiful forests. She also loved how the hostel was so well organized with meetings and study groups at every time of the day. "The campus was very green and the town was very pretty. I will surely come back here to spend more time." At the moment, she's happy with her studies but she's not
