A search utility that turns an email, address, phone number, name, message inside a vCard into a searchable content, with the possibility to open the source file or view it in more detail. Version: Beta File size: 2.26 MBs, that he hopes will enable 'Turkey to contribute to stabilizing the situation in the region'. It is in this context that Turkish hopes to see a redoubling of the US-NATO military intervention in Libya that began last summer. Indeed, it is in this context, too, that Kurdish participation in the NATO intervention in Libya is seen by Turkey as a threat to their national security, and Ankara has even launched a propaganda campaign claiming that Arabs in northern Kurdistan are joining Syrian 'terrorists' (the PKK). In an interview with the Turkish newspaper Hurriyet, one of the most prestigious newspapers in Turkey, Yavuz Baydar, a Turkish academic specialising in the Kurdish issue was highly critical of that propaganda campaign. He said that if 'the greater part of the PKK leadership was to be killed in Iraq, then there wouldn't be a problem'. Baydar told the newspaper that Turkey was trying to invent 'a new world order and make people accept it'. 'We want to get rid of the PKK and IS [Daesh] so that we can join the West'. He went on: 'Even if the PKK in Iraq isn't much of a threat now, we can easily turn it into a threat'. This is why Turkey was trying to persuade PKK militants to turn themselves in, he said. Turkey is even reported to have sent advance troops to northern Iraq at times to facilitate the capture and possible elimination of PKK militants, who can then be handed over to the Turkish security forces. According to the Turkish newspaper Milliyet, YPG-SDF had taken the former Syrian military bases in northern Syria and were now already holding large swathes of northern Syria. It is worth noting that the propaganda campaign in northern Kurdistan of 'American puppets' is a creation of Turkish state propaganda outlets. It is therefore not an independent source of information. YPG-SDF: Softening the image of Turkey The YPG-SDF has sought to carefully downplay their relationship with Turkey, which in the past has been very poor. By and large, Turkey has not welcomed the rise aa67ecbc25

Q: How to refresh CSS style to get ready for new content? I have made some changes to the page and when I preview the page with any browser, it looks as it should. When a customer clicks on a button, I want the CSS to update and display the new content. I can do this with jQuery but I want to learn how to do it without it. Please refer to my code below:
