Also check in for updates on some newly added posts. They start out like this: “If you have a hunting license, you should also have a background check,” a proposal in the General Assembly’s version of the state budget says. Republicans and Democrats agree that the background check system is too easily abused by criminals, but they disagree on how much the checks should check.

Republicans support what is known as an instant check — the instant a buyer gets a handgun. Democrats want a system of instant checks, combined with a delay before the sale. A delay would let someone who was considering the purchase “cool off.” The legislators write, “Someone who can afford to buy a gun should not be allowed to do so instantaneously, and someone whose mental health could be affected by the presence of a gun in his or her home should be allowed to wait until their mental health is settled.” Their proposal would allow background checks, only if the gun owner would wait a number of days before selling the gun. The amount of time would vary depending on how
